

Copy and Paste Prompts

A ready prompt for every document you sell

Prepared for Mark Strazisar

These are ready to use prompts, Mark, one for every kind of document you sell. They take the blank screen out of the equation. You never have to figure out what to say. You paste one in, fill in a couple of blanks, and start talking.

How to use these

1. Open the Claude desktop app.
2. Pick the prompt below for the document you want to build.
3. Copy it and paste it into Claude.
4. Replace anything in [square brackets] with the real details. For example, change [concept name] to Tap and Burger, or to the real name.
5. Send it. Then just talk, the way you would explain the job to a sharp new manager. Claude will ask questions if you skip something.
6. When you are done talking, say "okay, write the full document now."
7. Read the draft. Fix anything wrong by talking again. Save it when it sounds like you.

A few tips that make every prompt work better.

- Talk like a person, not a writer. Explain it out loud the way you actually would.
 - If Claude makes it too fancy or too corporate, say "make it simpler and warmer, plain words." It will.
 - If it gets a detail wrong, just say the right version. It fixes it instantly.
 - Always end by saving two copies. One in your Finished folder for the client, and one in your Templates folder with the names removed so you can sell it again.

The master prompt, works for anything

If you ever want to build something not listed below, use this and fill in the blanks.

You are helping me, a hospitality operator with 25 years of experience, write a [type of document] for a [concept type, for example casual burger and beer spot] called [concept name].

The reader is [who will use it, for example a brand new server].
The goal of the document is [what it should accomplish].
Keep the tone warm, clear, and plain. Short sentences. No jargon.

I am going to talk you through how this really works, from my own experience. Take notes and ask me questions if I skip something important. Do not write the document yet. When I say I am done, write it up as a clean, organized, ready to use document with clear headings and steps.

Operations core

Opening and closing procedures

Help me write the opening and closing procedures for [concept name], a [concept type]. I want one document that covers front of house and back of house, step by step, so any team member could open or close the building correctly. I am going to walk you through how we really open and close. Ask questions if I miss a station or a step. When I say done, write it as a clean checklist style procedure with sections and checkboxes. Keep it plain and easy to follow.

Cash handling and end of night reconciliation

Help me write a cash handling procedure for [concept name]. It should cover setting the drawer, handling cash during service, comps and voids, and counting down and reconciling at the end of the night. The reader is a shift manager. I will talk you through how we do it. Ask about anything I skip. Then write it as a clear step by step procedure, plain language, with the why behind each control so people follow it.

Cleaning and sanitation schedule

Help me write a cleaning and sanitation schedule for [concept name]. I want daily, weekly, and monthly tasks for both front of house and back of house, with who is responsible and how to do each one right. I will talk you through it. Ask questions if I miss an area or a piece of equipment. Then write it as a clean schedule with checkboxes and sign off lines.

Inventory, ordering, and par levels

Help me write an inventory and ordering procedure for [concept name]. It should cover taking inventory, setting par levels, placing orders, and receiving deliveries correctly. The reader is a manager or a lead. I will walk you through how we really do it. Ask about anything I skip. Then write it as a clear step by step procedure with any forms or simple tables that would help.

Food safety and health code procedures

Help me write the food safety procedures for [concept name]. Cover temperature logs, safe storage and first in first out, cross contamination, hand washing, cleaning and sanitizing, and what to do for a health inspection. The reader is the whole team. I will talk you through our standards. Ask questions if I miss something. Then write it as a clear, plain procedure people will actually follow.

Emergency and incident procedures

Help me write emergency and incident procedures for [concept name]. Cover a medical emergency, a fire, a security or violent situation, a guest who has had too much to drink, refusing service, and a serious guest complaint. The reader is any team member or manager. I will talk you through how we handle each one. Ask questions if I miss a scenario. Then write it as clear, calm, step by step guidance, with who to call and what to document.

Manager daily checklist and shift handover

Help me write a manager's daily operations checklist and shift handover for [concept name]. It should cover what a manager checks at open, during service, and at close, and what they hand off to the next manager. I will walk you through how a good manager runs a shift here. Ask questions if I skip something. Then write it as a clean checklist with a shift handover section.

Employee and training

New hire onboarding program

Help me write a new hire onboarding program for [concept name], a [concept type]. It should cover the first day, the first week, and the first 30 days, including paperwork handoff to the right person, training schedule, and what success looks like. Keep my lane to operations and training, not HR compliance. I will talk you through it. Ask questions if I skip a step. Then write it as a clear, welcoming onboarding guide.

Server training manual

Help me write a complete server training manual for [concept name], a [concept type]. Cover our standards, appearance, opening setup, knowing the floor, the full steps of service from greet to farewell, menu and drink knowledge, responsible alcohol service, handling complaints, the point of sale, and closing side work. End with a training schedule and a sign off page. I will talk you through how a server really learns this job. Ask questions if I skip something. Then write it as a clean, warm manual a brand new server could follow.

Bartender training manual

Help me write a complete bartender training manual for [concept name]. Cover bar setup and breakdown, our pour standards, the cocktail and beer list, speed and station organization, responsible service and checking ID, cash and tabs, guest interaction, and cleaning and sanitation. End with a training schedule and a sign off page. I will talk you through how we run our bar. Ask questions if I skip something. Then write it as a clean, practical manual.

Host and door training

Help me write a host training guide for [concept name]. Cover greeting guests, managing the wait and the seating chart, working with servers on table flow, phone and reservations, to go handoff, and reading the room. I will talk you through it. Ask questions if I skip something. Then write it as a clear, warm guide a new host could follow on day one.

Steps of service guide

Help me write a one page steps of service guide for [concept name] that any front of house team member can keep in their apron. I will talk you through every step from greet to farewell with our timing standards. Ask questions if I skip a step. Then write it as a tight, scannable quick reference.

Menu and bar knowledge guide

Help me write a menu and bar knowledge guide for [concept name] that helps the team describe and recommend our food and drinks honestly. I will talk you through our signature items, what makes each special, common allergens, and what pairs well. Ask questions if I skip something. Then write it as a clear guide with a short mouthwatering description for each key item.

Coaching and performance conversation framework

Help me write a simple coaching framework for managers at [concept name], for giving feedback, running a quick correction conversation, and recognizing great work. Keep it to operations and floor performance, not formal HR discipline. I will talk you through how a good manager coaches here. Ask questions if I skip something. Then write it as a short, practical guide with example phrases.

Standards and scaling

Brand and service standards guide

Help me write a brand and service standards guide for [group or concept name]. This defines what consistent looks like across every location: the feel, the service standards, the non negotiables, and the little things that make us us. I will talk you through what makes our experience consistent. Ask questions if I skip something. Then write it as a clear standards document the whole group can align to.

Audit and self inspection checklist

Help me write a self inspection and audit checklist for [concept name] so a manager can walk the building and score whether we are meeting our standards on cleanliness, service, food safety, and the guest experience. I will talk you through what to check. Ask questions if I skip an area. Then write it as a scored checklist with pass or fail and notes.

New location opening playbook, your flagship

Help me write a new location opening playbook for [group name], a repeatable plan for opening a new [concept type] location. Cover a countdown timeline from lease signing to opening day, the build and equipment checklist, hiring and the training calendar, ordering and vendor setup, pre opening punch lists, the health and licensing steps at a high level, the soft opening plan, and the first week operating plan. This is my most valuable product, so make it thorough and genuinely useful. I will talk you through how a great opening really runs, from my own experience opening many concepts. Ask me questions if I skip a phase or a task. Build it section by section. When I say done, write it as a complete, organized playbook with timelines and checklists.

Recipe and plating spec template

Help me build a recipe and plating spec template for [concept name], so every location makes every dish the same way. Cover ingredients and amounts, build steps, plating, portion and cost notes, and a photo placeholder. I will talk you through one or two dishes as examples. Then write it as a clean, reusable template I can fill in for every item.

Train the trainer guide

Help me write a train the trainer guide for [group or concept name], so our best team members can teach new hires consistently. Cover how to run a training shift, how to use our manuals and checklists, how to give feedback, and how to sign someone off as ready. I will talk you through it. Ask questions if I skip something. Then write it as a clear, practical guide.

Keep this file open while you work. Pick a prompt, fill the blanks, talk, review, save. That is the whole job.
